

Cirencester Park set to be full of animals at this year's Cotswold Show

Plans are well underway for the Show to be held on 4th and 5th July 2015 with more animals than ever before.

The main Bathurst Arena will be featuring the Scurry Driving Arena Challenge - carriage driving in miniature for a fast and furious spectacle of ponies, drivers and obstacles.

The Apsley Arena will once again be the centre of countryside pursuits including rare breed displays, dog agility and a sheep shearing competition with new equipment versus traditional shears.

The Rare Breeds Survival Trust will have their own marquee on the 100 acre site and there will be separate areas for falconry and a large display of rare breed fowl.

Dogs are once again welcome to the Show and even have their own activities including an agility trial and dog show which will be judged by TV Vet Joe Inglis.

There are also have-a-go hurries for gundogs as well as for those dogs with fewer gundog credentials and Reedlands Retrievers will be at the Show for the first time – demonstrating their skills in the main arena.

Horse lovers have not been forgotten with Parelli Natural Horsemanship and also Gary Witheford, known as the Horse Whisperer.

Rarer exhibits include meerkats and skunks!

The Show's original ethos "where town meets country" is still adhered to 27 years on with masses to see and do for the whole family throughout the weekend, from clay target shooting and archery, to new attractions such as the Mountain Bike stunt team Zero Gravity and the high speed Skyfall Zip Wire. The main arena welcomes Moto Stunts International for spectacular displays on both days.

Children's entertainments are plentiful again with free circus skills lessons as well as a fun fair, donkey rides, a climbing wall, bouncy castles and lots more.

Tickets for the Show are on sale via the new website www.cotswoldshow.co.uk which is constantly being updated with new attractions as they are confirmed.

ENDS

6th March 2015

For images:

Philippa Stagg

07791 586199

philippa@ps-pr.co.uk